GENERAL CONFERENCE.

Memorial Services for Deceased Conference Officers.

Miss Willard Declines to Speak -- Consecration Services To-morrow ... Items of Interest.

Bishop Simpson occupied the chair to-day, and Dr. Upham, of the New England Conference, conducted the devotional exercises.

This being the day for the memorial services for decreased Conference officers, which promised to be of an interesting character, a large audi-ence was attracted to the hell and filled all the available space during the entire service.

Several delegates who wished to return home were granted leave of absence, and the reserved delegates took their places.

Dr. Haven, one of the newly elected Bishops, resigned his position as Chairman of the Educa-tional Committee, and asked to be excused from further duties as a delegate. His request was granted. Dr. Bristol was given his seat and Dr. Hare appointed Chairman of the Educations Committee.

Dr. Warren, Dr. Foss and Dr. Hurst, Bushops elected, were also excused from further duties as delegates, and Dr. King, Dr. Cunningham and Dr. Buckley given their seats.

The Committee appointed to inquire into the eligibility of T. Valentine, of Florida, to a seat in the Conference, reported in favor of sustaining the delegate, and their report was accepted.

Dr. Trimble, Chairman of the Committee on Episcopacy, presented the report of the Committee on Episcopacy, presented the report of the Committee on the election of a colored Bishop. The report state that the Committee had examined all the memorials bearing upon the subject and by a vote of 39 to 8 had come to the following conclusion:

ion:
That it was for the best interests of the Church is general, and the colored people in particular, hat one or more persons of African descent hould be elected to the office of Bishop. The reort was made the special order of the day for 10
'clock next Thursday.

Dr. J. J. Smith and Rev. David Wilson, frateralt delegates from the Methodist Protestant nat delegates from the Methodist Protestan Church, and Rev. E Heflinger, of the Evangeli-cal Association, were introduced to the Confer cal Association, were introduced to the Conference.

A communication from Miss Frances E. Willard, who was granted ten minutes to address the Conference, after a long discussion yesterday, was read the Secretary this morning. The communication stated that she did not desire to occupy the ten hard-carned minutes, and if she had known of the serious opposition that there was in the Conference against her request she would never have asked the privilege of addressing the body. A motion was made by Dr. Hoyt to adopt the report of the Entertainment Committee for the next General Committee, which was read several days ago and previded for the appointment of a committee of thirteen to have the matter in charge. After considerable discussion the matter was postponed.

tays ago and previded for the appointment of a committee of thirteen to have the matter in charge. After considerable discussion the matter was postponed.

A motion was made and carried that, when the Conference adjourned to-day, it adjourn to meet in st. Paul's Church this evening to hear addresses from fraternal delegates.

The motion to hold the conscration services at 8t. Paul's Church to-morrow was reconsidered, and it was decided to hold the service at Pike's Opera-house at 11 z. m.

The memorial service for deceased Bishops and other Conference officers which was made the order of the day for 10 o'clock to-day was opened by the singing of the 982d hymn: "How blessed the rightcous when he dies," read by Rev. W. H. Hunter. Prayer was othered by Rev. D. W. Bartine. The 90th Psainn was read by Rev. J. W. Joice and stang by the congregation.

Rev. Dr. Foss read the memorial of Bishop Janes. He said Bishop Janes was the son of Benjamin Janes, a carpetiter. In early life he studied law, then studied medicine, and received his diploma in 1820. He entired the ministry in 1845, was soon appointed agent of Dickinson College, and afterward financial agent of the American Bible Society, and lassly chosen to the highest office in the cirt of the Church.

In that office he served faithfully for 32 years. It was the office of Bishop that made him great, and will be spoken of for the next hundred years in connection with Paul, Wesley and McKendree. It was his simplicity, his studiousness, his mounching real, his love for the Church, that made him great. He had but a single sim, and as he said, "This one thing I do,"

He was not an emotional man. Twelve times he passed within one hour's ride of Niagara before he visited that place of unsurpassed natural wonders. With him the "King's business required hasse."

Few men preached so many sermons. He was found in houses of poverty, and seemed ever to be hearing the said and an an end to had a second ever to be hearing the said and an an end to had a said the place of the place quired haste."

Few men preached so many sermons. He was found in houses of poverty, and seemed ever to be hearing the admonition "Comfort ye, comfort ye, my people." His letter to Rev. Dr. Sewell is one of the most tender and pathetic and elequent, perhaps ever written to a sick man. He was founded by the composition of the most tender and pathetic and elequent, perhaps ever written to a sick man. He had a deep concern in the work in the South. After a love-feast in Del ware, he said he would rather have the colored people speak for God than to hear the angels sing. He was a man of prayer, spending from one to two hours every day upon his knees.

Rev. Dr. Fowler read the memoir of Bishop

Ames.

Five years ago eve y eye was fixed on a central figure. That figure was Bishop Ames. Perhaps in many ways he was the greatest of men given to the church. His father was a chaplain in Washington's army. He was converted in 1827, joined Illinois Conference in 1839, in 1832 united with Indiana Conference, in 1849 was elected Secretary of the Missionary Society, and was elected Bishop in 1852.

He was a born ruler among men. He could look into the future, and was ready to grappile with any great proposition. It is deficult to sum him up. Look at his characteristic home work, his interest in mission labors, and in many enterprises that engaged his attention for fifty years, and then you have a faint glimpse at Bishop

Ames.

He was a preacher of marked ability. He was simple, plain, direct, emotional, a Bible preacher in the hignest sense of that term. But perhaps his greatest ability was as a statesman. He saw he has been proported by the beautiful to the saw the plant of the saw the saw the plant of the saw the saw what the church had and what she must have.

To his a the Church looked in time of asversity. Bishop Asbury was the great organizer, Bishop Janes the great itinerant, Bishop 8 mpson the great prescher, and Bishop Ames the great statesman. He is buried in Baltimore.

The memorial of Bishop Haven was read by Rev. Mr. Mailailen, of Boston. A brief is as follows: Bishop Haven was born in 1821 and died in 1880, As he delivered the oration over the remains of Bishop Ames so his grandfather had spoken over the remains of the grandfather of B shop Ames. the remains of the grandfather of B shop An He united with the New England Conference command.

As a man he was distinguished by all that was manly and true. He admired his friends and prayed for the enemies. His heart was as tender as a little child. No sweeter love ex stod than between Gilbert Haven and his wife. Her death broke his heart. He hated slavery and was a true broke his heart. He hated slavery and was a true reaction to the oppressed.

His oration was a masterpiece of eloquence and argument. When he was elected to the Epigeopacy some feared the Church had made a mistake in their choice, but their feats were groundless. He was aggressive, but conservative. He had a rich, chee ful, Christian experience. He was loves by all, and his death brought sadness to all.

Rev. D. Curry. D. D., was next called uponsfor a memorial of Rev. R. Neison, D. D. Dr. Curry had no paper prepared owing to the short notice he had that its name was on the programme, and consequently he made a few off hand remarks stating what he knew of Dr. Nelson personally and by requirally.

fully-prepared one and presented the life work of the deceased in glowing terms. He was born in Maryland in 1825, and at an early day was con-verted and resolved to decote his life to Christian work.

He received a good education and was presper-ous in the ministry, especially in evangelical work. He was elected Fresident of Drickinson College in 1868, and Missionary Secretary in 1872, which position he held until his death.

Upon motion of Dr. Buckley, a rising vote was taken expressing the regard of the Conference for the deceased officers and thanks for the able me-moirs.

11 A rising vote was also taken expressing sympathy for Bishop Seout and Bishop Bowman, who had buried their wives siece the last Conference. The delegation from the South Indiana Conference presented a series of resolutions upon the death of Mr. Goodwin, one of their number, which were read and adopted.

The Committees which meet this afternoon were called, the dexology was sung. Dr. Payne pronounced the benediction and the session adjourned.

Rev. O. H. Tiffany, D.D., lectures at Trinity Church this evening.

Dr. James Buckley, by his fillibustering yester-day, did not increase his friends.

Dr. Newman had a large and appreciative audience at McKendree M. E. Church. Several of the delegates have returned home and the reserved delegates have taken their place.

the reserved delegates have taken their place.

Seev. Dr. Fowier, newly-elected Missionary Secretary, has already begun his labors in that department of church-work.

Mes Willard did not address the Conference yesterlay, but there was a large audience to hear her at St. Paul's Church last evening.

The Committee on Entertainment of the next General Conference have received invitations from Philadelphia and Saratoga Springs. The Committee on Book Concerns, after an animated discussion, yesterday atternoon decided by a small majority to recommend that the Christian Advocates of Atlanta and New Orleans be both
